

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Jefferson County

By Marguerite A. Miller

Mrs. Miller, a regular contributor to Kentucky Ancestors, researches the Gagel, Quillman, and Fey families of southwestern Jefferson County. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Balthasar Quillman and Erhardt Gagel. Her grandfather George P. Gagel was a deacon of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

In about 1850, in the Pond section of Jefferson County, a group of God-fearing, German-speaking citizens wanted to have a place of worship to suit their needs.

A deed was drawn up on 19 August 1850 between Balthasar Quillman and John Quillman of the first part and Erhard Gagel, Lorenz Quilman and John Quillman, trustees of the "German Evangelical Church & Congregation of the Pond Settlement, all of the county & state aforesaid, for and in the name of said Congregation of the second part."

The deed, for a quarter acre, read that "Balthasar Quilman & John Quilman, for in consideration of their veneration of the Christian Religion, and also in consideration of the [sum] of One dollar to them in hand paid in receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, have given granted, bargained & sold." For some reason this deed was not recorded until 29 January 1853. Curran Pope of the Jefferson County Court signed it.¹

Trustees planned the construction of a German Evangelical Church, a "Christian Worship house according to that form of Religion established and propagated by the great and good German Reform Religion of Martin Luther & Ulrich Zwingler and is only to be used as a Christian Church." No graveyard was to be on the lot. The congregation was to keep the site in good repair.

The church was located at the present Iroquois Park, near Manslick and Palatka roads. The first list of membership covered the period from 1851 to 1863. Over the years the growing church had several names, including St. Johannes German Evangelical Church, South Louisville Reform Church, Lynnhurst Reformed Church. It is today known as Lynnhurst United Church of Christ and is located on Taylor Boulevard.

A schoolhouse was built near the church in the mid-1860s. A deed found concerning the school bears the date 18 April 1867 and was recorded on 13 January 1868. John Quillman deeded the land for the school to church trustees Frederick Remagen, John Quillman, and Henry Metz of "Pond Settlement":

"John Quillman for and in consideration of his veneration of the Christian Religion and Education and in consideration of one dollar granted, bargained and sold to Frederick Remagen and Henry Metz Trustees as aforesaid and their Successors in Office forever, one lot of ground on the North Eastern part of the farm of Said John Quillman bounded as follows, nestled by the St. John Church Road to lay between this road and a branch, yards from the St. John Church ground containing one quarter of an acre to have and to hold said quarter of an acre and it appentences for the purpose of erecting there on a German evangelical schoolhouse said Trustee's have to take good care of said Schoolhouse by the aid of the Congregation and keep it in good repair and order and said building is to be used only as a Schoolhouse and not to be sold or used for any other purpose under the penalty or rendering this Indenture null and void. In consideration of this promises the said John Quillmann for himself his heirs and assignees warrants and forever defends the title of said lot of ground unto said Trustees and their successor in Office for the purpose a aforesaid against the claims of all persons whoever herein under our hands and seals the 18 day of April in the One Thousand Eight-Hundred and Sixty Seven year of our Lord. Signed Sealed and delivered in presence of John Quillman, Frederick Remagen, Henry Metz.²

I was unable to locate any information on a school at this location. However, a member of the Jefferson County Board of Education told me that many of the old German Schools were not listed with the county schools.³

We know that the church was established before 14 February 1852, when a court record stated that John Quilman by his attorney came into court and requested that a road be constructed from his house to St. John Church. His motion in court "ordered John King, John Wiser, John Finley, Lawrence Prince, Anthony Wiser and Arhart Gagel or any three of them after being duly sworn that the nearest and best way for a feasible road from his house by St. John's Church then into the Manslick Road on the lines dividing the lands of said Quilman and John C. Theis, Jos Wood, Wm. Young's heirs, Wm. McCullough and that they report the Conveniences and inconveniences that will result as well to the Public unto individuals in care said road shall be established."

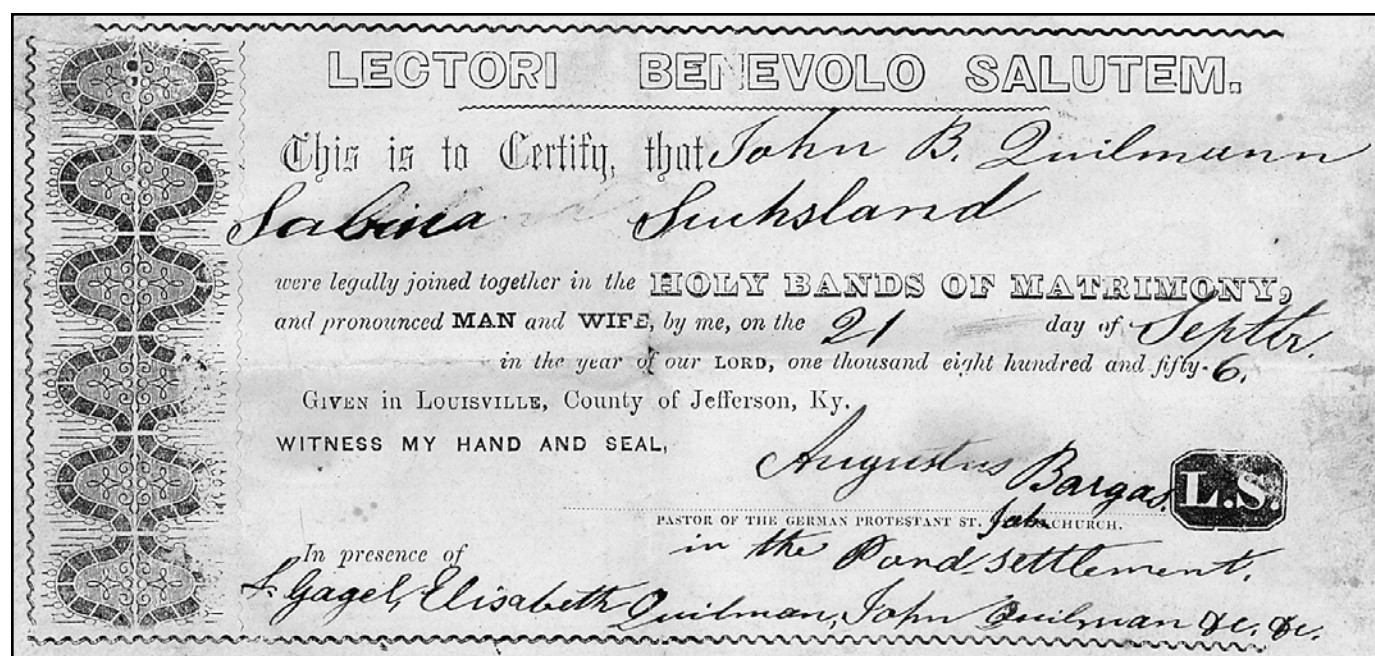

In the June 1852 term it was ordered that a road twenty feet wide be established as follows: Beginning at St. Johns Church on the lands of said Quillman thence through his land to the line dividing the lands of John Finley and John C. Their thence on said line to the line between James Woods and the heirs of Wm Young and Mrs. McCullough into the Manslick road."

On 26 April 1853 it was ordered that the road be established. John C. Theis wanted it reversed "because he felted he had damages."⁴ On 27 September 1853 a Jury found that John C. Theis was not entitled to any damages. The jury consisted of John G. King, foreman; M.M. Shively; Jno. Swindler; James Logan; Stephen Serance; C. Kendall; Wm. Fleming; John Schardine; Jonathan____; Adam Welsh; John S. Sandery; and M. Stramghan.

Over the years, St. John Church has been in four locations. The first location was on the Quillman land somewhere near the corner of Manslick and Palatka roads. Second, it was at the corner of Bluegrass Avenue and Taylor Blvd. A few years after that, it moved to 1060 Lynnhurst Avenue. It was much later when it moved to its present home on Taylor Boulevard.

Many pastors have served the church over the years. Two of the earliest were Augustus Bargas and Johann Walter.

This 21 September 1856 marriage certificate of John B. Quillman and Sabina Suchsland was signed by Augustus Bargas, then pastor of the "German Protestant St. John Church in the Pond Settlement." Witnesses were S. Gagel and Elisabeth and John "Quilman."

Members taken from the early St. John's church book

The following is a list of the early membership and it has been checked and translated by a gentleman from Germany who knows the spellings of many of these German names. However, some names may appear more than once due to spelling variations. This list is primarily taken from the church Klingelbentel-Collection Bag for Money.

Abstracts from the Lexington Intelligencer, August 19, 1842

Dr. Thomas H. Appleton Jr.

Part One

Through the efforts of Ivor Lois Wetherby, the Kentucky Historical Society recently received a collection of Kentucky newspapers from Jane McMurtry Allen of Lake Worth, Fla. The newspapers are now under the stewardship of the KHS Special Collections department. For more information, contact archivist Lynne Hollingsworth at (502) 564-1792 or via e-mail: Lynne.Hollingsworth@kygov. The following abstracts, rich in detail and of interest to genealogists and social historians alike, are taken from the Lexington Intelligencer, published semiweekly by Will. R. Hervey, editor/proprietor. Some changes have been made in capitalization and punctuation to conform to modern usage.

“INFORMATION REQUESTED. John Schooler, an invalid pensioner, has not been heard of by his wife and connexions since the fall of 1837, when he was seen in Washington City. His wife, Mrs. RACHAEL SCHOOLER, of Winchester, Clarke county, Ky., is anxious to hear from him, if living, and if dead, is interested in knowing when and where he died. He was a Dragoon under Col. Dodge, the service against Black Hawk, on the upper Mississippi, and by the accidental discharge of a cannon, had both arms shot off, one above the elbow, and the other just below, and his left eye destroyed. He was about 6 feet 6 inches high, of light hair and blue eyes. Any information about him will be most thankfully acknowledged by his wife and connexions. Any information directed to the Hon. R. HAWES, Winchester, Clarke county, Ky., will be conveyed to his wife.

Editors of newspapers will confer an act of humanity by inserting this notice.”

In an earlier issue, it had been reported that “Maj. Lewinski” was in town “for the purpose of raising a Cavalry School.” “Subscription papers have been left at the Bookstore of Messrs. Gatewood & Megowan, where all desirous of joining the class now forming will please call on to-day or to-morrow.”

Gatewood & Megowan, booksellers, advertised the availability of the “cottage Bible,” Dunn’s “military pocket manual” (“for the use of Officers and Privates of Volunteer and Militia Companies”), Beauchampe, or The Kentucky Tragedy: a tale of passion, and various publications for Masons.

Jno. G. Simrall announced that there would be a camp meeting near Mt. Horeb Church, “5 miles North of Lexington,” beginning on September 5. “Rev. R.J. Breckenridge, D.D.; Brown, Bullock, Matthews, Hall, Rice, W.L. Breckenridge, Price, Logan, and other Brethren, are expected to attend.”

“DIED—on the 7th inst., Capt. JOHN CAVE, of Jefferson, late of Woodford County, at the residence of Mr. Reuben Graves, in Woodford county.”

A. Phillips & Co., “auctioneers and commission merchants,” offered for sale “a comfortable light family carriage” on “moderate terms.” If the carriage had not sold earlier, it would be auctioned at the next county court day, September 12. Interested persons were asked to contact the auctioneer, G. Christy. Located at the corner of Main Street and Jordan’s Row, directly opposite the Courthouse, the firm also advertised for sale furniture, carpets, and “Venitian Window Blinds” as well as “a large and desirable assortment of dry goods,” including Irish linens, satins, Palm Leaf Hats, and hosiery. “As we are in want of Cash, we will make it a great object to those who purchase for Cash only. We invite their attention.”

John F. Leavy announced that he had purchased the stock of his brother, W.A. Leavy, and would “carry on” the dry goods business “at the old stand, corner of Main and Mill Streets.” The new owner had begun operating “with the determination of selling on the most reasonable terms, for Cash only.”

W.A. Leavy issued legal notice that he had sold his stock and requested that all persons owing him money come forward to pay their accounts.

W.A. Leavy also announced that he had decided to sell that portion of his "valuable and beautiful farm" that lay on the northwest side of the Harrodsburg Turnpike about one half-mile of the city. The property consisted of three hundred acres of "good Hemp Land" and boasted "one of the best Barns in the county." Water came from "a never failing spring." Leavy's father bought the property, "known as Alexander McConnell's settlement and pre-emption," from the late John Brown.

W.A. Leavy further announced that he had just received "a large and handsome supply of fresh dry goods in every variety" from New York and Philadelphia. The items had been "carefully selected by himself in those markets" and would be sold at wholesale or retail "on terms to suit the times."

"R. Pindell, Esq., Assignee" advertised for sale various legal documents "proper for the Examination of Bankrupts" as well as "Blank Depositions, for the use of Commissioners in Bankruptcy, at $2 per hundred." Pindell also offered for sale a 60-acre tract of land "adjoining the city of Lexington . . . formerly known as Fowler's Garden." The property featured "a comfortable Brick Dwelling House, a Hemp Factory, and all convenient out buildings." In addition, Pindell announced the availability of a 154-acre farm, "known as Judge Mayes's Farm," in Jessamine County.

J.M. Pindell advertised that he would attend to all legal business "in Fayette and the adjoining counties" and would "give particular attention to the preparation of cases in Bankruptcy." He could be reached at the law office of Pindell & Buckner.

C. M. Keiser advertised for sale "54 three year old mules," in good order, "8 miles North of Lexington, on the Henry Mill's road."

Wm. B. Emmal announced that he had opened a "family grocery" on Limestone Street "a few doors above the Jail and opposite Messrs. Stoll &

Patterson's Cabinet Shop." He promised "fresh groceries" at "the lowest rates."

Transylvania University took out lengthy advertisements to promote the upcoming academic year, scheduled to "go into full operation on the first Monday in November next." M.C. Johnson, chairman of the board of trustees of Transylvania, announced that the "Academical Department" would consist of Rev. H.B. Bascom, acting president of Transylvania and Morrison Professor of moral and intellectual philosophy; Rev. R.T. P. Allen, professor of mathematics and natural philosophy; Rev. B.H. McCown, professor of ancient languages; and Rev. J. L. Kemp, adjunct professor of math; and Rev. Thomas H. Lynch, adjunct professor of languages, both in the "Preparatory Department."

Chairman Johnson also announced the faculty of the Law School: George Robertson, professor of constitutional law, equity, and the law of comity; Thomas A. Marshall, professor of the law of pleadings, evidence, and contract; and A.K. Woolley, professor of common, national, and commercial law. The law term would begin in November and continue "until the last of February."

Finally, Thos. D. Mitchell, M.D., dean of the Medical Department, announced the members of his faculty and their specialties: Benj. W. Dudley, anatomy and surgery; James C. Cross, medical jurisprudence; Elisha Bartlett, theory and practice; Wm. H. Richardson, obstetrics and diseases of women and children; Thos. D. Mitchell, therapeutics and materia medica and dean of the faculty; Robert Peter, chemistry and pharmacy; and James M. Bush, anatomy and surgery. The cost of a full medical session would be $105, payable in advance, "in notes of good and solvent banks of the States whence the pupils come." Room and board, "fuel and lights included," ranged from $2 to $3.50 per week.

James Conquest Cross, M.D., professor in the medical department at Transylvania, published a lengthy "prospectus" for a publication he intended to inaugurate titled The Western and Southern Medical Recorder. Its guiding principle would be "to teach physicians how to treat disease, and not to waste their time and jeopardize health by weaving fanciful and untenable theories." Pathology and Therapeutics would be prominently discussed. The first issue would appear in November; there would be twelve issues, each of forty-eight pages, per year. An annual subscription cost four dollars, payable in advance.

Will. R. Hervey, editor of the Lexington Intelligencer, located on Main Street next door to the post office and “immediately opposite Brennan’s Hotel,” advertised that he had recently purchased “new type” specifically for publishing books and pamphlets. His firm was prepared for all kinds of printing jobs, “on short notice, at the lowest possible prices, and in as good style as such work can be done west of the mountains.” Among the items his firm could print were circulars, “funeral tickets,” bank checks, and “ball tickets.”

T. Walker, professor of law, advertised that the law department of Cincinnati College would begin its fall term on November 1 and last four months. “The whole course is arranged and conducted in a mode suited to beginners, and with a view to include, as far as possible, a general outline of the law in a single session.”

Persons in need of dental services were invited to the office of Dr. Allen, located “at Mrs. Jouett’s, Main street,” between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Dr. J.M. Bush and Dr. E.L. Dudley announced their association and intention to “tender their professional services to the citizens of the town and country.” They would “occupy the same office with Professor Dudley.”

George P. Jouett, attorney and counselor at law, was available to handle legal work in Fayette and adjoining counties. “Office up stairs over George W. Norton’s Drug Store. Entrance third door from the corner.”

Thomas M. Hickey and Franklin Tilford announced the formation of their law partnership and their promise to “attend promptly to all business entrusted to their care in the Courts of Fayette and the adjoining counties.” The pair could be contacted at the office “heretofore occupied by Hickey & Hunt.”

“Wanted, A Nurse, without any incumbrance, for which liberal wages will be given.” Applications were to be accepted at the newspaper office.

Leslie Combs offered a “dwelling house to rent” at No. 1 Combs’ Square, “near the Catholic Church.”

Postmaster Thomas S. Redd posted the times for the “arrivals and departures of the mails.” There were seven principal destinations—Maysville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Owingsville, London, Bardstown, and Keene—with enumerated intermediate stops. “The Post Office is open from 7 a.m. until dark every day, except Sundays, and on that day from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m.”

Thomas S. Redd and his partner J.R. Sloan, whose office was located “on Main street, a few doors above Mr. Rob’t. Frazer’s corner,” advertised 600 boxes of tallow candles for sale “on as good terms as can be had in the Western country.”

C. Carr, executor of W. Carr, posted a notice “TO STONE MASONS” that he wished to contract “for the Walling in of my Father’s Grave Yard, to be done in a strong and substantial manner.” He specified the dimensions of the desired wall and what materials were to be used. “Payment in Cash when the work is completed.”

O.T. Alden, “gen. Agt. For Ky.,” advertised that he would be selling the published works of author Peter Parley for a few days “at the Store of John J. Dudley.”

Paul Bedford announced his intention to sell “the farm on which I live” in Bourbon County. He was also authorized to sell 118 adjoining acres. “The land lies on Strode’s Creek, six miles south east from Paris, not far from the Winchester and Paris road, is finely timbered, and watered with never failing spring and creek water at every point desirable.” Bedford was willing to “sell all or any portion, from 120 to 315 Acres . . . to suit the purchaser.”

John S. Hilton advertised his desire to sell his residence, “situated on South Upper street, near Col. Dunham’s, adjoining Wickliffe’s and opposite the residence of Jas. O. Harrison, Esq.” The two-story dwelling and outbuildings, all of brick, were “well calculated for a large family.” The one-acre lot contained shrubbery, choice fruit and ornamental trees, and “an excellent Well of never failing water.”

J.G. Chinn announced his wish to sell his house and four-acre lot on Hill Street. If the property should not sell by October 1, “it will either be rented or sold to the highest bidder during that month.”

Thomas Megowan advertised that he had recently completed a large addition to his FARMERS’ AND TRADERS’ HOTEL, located at the corner of Mulberry and Short Streets between the livery stables of Lockhart & Robinson and Joseph R. Megowan. The hotel was now prepared to welcome “the traveling public, transient visitors, and boarders” and “upon lower terms than any respectable house in the city.”

J. & W. Ashton, proprietors of the Dudley House, announced that they had “reduced their charges so as to correspond with the times.” “Their friends may rely upon their charges being as low as in justice could be asked.” At the stagecoach office inside the hotel guests could reserve seats “for any part of the country.”

John Brennan, proprietor of the Phoenix Hotel (“formerly Postlethwaites”), located at the corner of Main and Mulberry Streets, announced that his hotel had just undergone “a thorough repair, and been almost entirely refitted and refurnished.” He was confident his accommodations could not be surpassed “by those of any establishment in the West.” John H. Penny, “so long known as connected with the establishment in that capacity,” would continue as manager. The stables—including carriages, buggies, and horses—were under the management of G. Drummond Hunt. Stages made regular stops at the hotel. Brennan took care to emphasize that his charges had been “REDUCED to correspond with the present state of the times.”

N.L. Finnell notified his friends “and the public generally” that he had leased “for a term of years” the Georgetown Hotel, “the large and convenient hotel situated on the corner of Main and Main-Cross Streets, Georgetown, Ky.” He pledged “his best exertions to give satisfaction to all who may call on him.”

N.L. and J.W. Finnell announced that they had sold “the Lexington Intelligencer establishment” and desired to settle all accounts as promptly as possible. Any account left unpaid on January 1, 1843, would be “placed in the hands of officers for collection.”

The Finnells also announced that William S. Harper would have “charge of the business” during their absence and was authorized to settle accounts.

Joseph Biggs informed “his old customers, friends and the public generally” that he had resumed the tailoring business “at his old stand, on Main Street, which ha[d] recently been occupied by Thomas Ross.” Biggs pledged henceforth to devote “his whole time” to the business and to employ “the most experienced and faithful workmen.” He specifically invited patrons “from the neighboring counties.”

“DANCING. Mr. Richardson respectfully announces that he will re-open his DANCING ACADEMY as soon as his engagement at Harrodsburg is completed—say the first Saturday in September next. He has reduced his prices to suit the pressure of the times, and will take in part payment whatever can be used by his family. N.B. Mr. Richardson is preparing a GRAND BALL, which he thinks will at least equal any thing of the kind ever ‘gotten up’ in Lexington.”

“MUSIC SCHOOL. Several applications having been made to HERR T. SCHMIDT to remain in Lexington, for the purpose of teaching and forming an AMATEUR BAND, he has consented to do so, and has already several Young Gentlemen, who will form themselves into that body. Those who would like to join said Band, will please to call at the Dudley House, No. 41, for further information. He will also give private Lessons on the following named instruments, viz: Violin, Flute, Clarinet, Piano Forte, Guitar, Trombone, Basson, Violincello, Alto, French Horn, Trumpet, Key Bugle, &c. Herr T. Schmidt warrants any scholar to advance him in 12 Lessons, so far as to improve himself without the aid of a teacher.”

P.E. Yeiser, "tanner and courier," located at the corner of Main and Spring streets "near J. Bruen's Foundry," advertised "on hand" such items as 1000 sides of sole, skirting and harness leather; 200 sides of upper leather; 150 sides of black grain leather, "a superior article for light Boots and Shoes"; and the like. "Leather or Shoes exchanged for Hides, on accommodating terms."

J. Warnock, M.D., announced his intention to open a medical practice including "surgery and midwifery," on Main Street above the post office "and opposite the residence of Gen. Combs." Dr. Warnock had purchased "the entire stock of medicines of Dr. C. Black, and will keep on hand his various preparations, for the accommodation of his friends and customers."

"Having studied the old school system, and the most approved systems of Botanic Medicine, together with the German mode of treating diseases, and the art of UROSPHIA (discriminating diseases by the Urine) as taught by the celebrated German, Doctor JOHN DILLENBAUGH, of Ohio, and having graduated at the Reform Medical College of Worthington, Ohio, [Warnock] feels warranted in offering himself as a practitioner of the healing art."

John L. Sheeley offered a $150 reward for the return of his "Red Morocco Pocket Book, containing $1280 in Kentucky Bank Paper." Sheeley had lost the pocket back somewhere between his residence, "4 miles from Lexington on the Russell's road," and Lexington, or in the city itself. In addition to the bank notes, the material includes several promissory notes: one on Wm. Drake dated April 1831, another on Valentine Morgan dated June 6, 1835; one on W.F. Sheeley payable to Mary Sheeley and dated March 24, 1824; and several smaller notes. "The public are cautioned against trading for any of these Notes."

Cadham, Todd & Co. announced for sale 5,000 yards of "Coarse Colored Negro Jeans of superior quality, cheap. Also—10,000 yards Negro Shirting."

"GOLD STAKE. The subscribers to the Gold Stake, will please call at my Stable, or address me forthwith, whether their colt or colts are now alive, and a description of them, in order that I may publish the same. Jos. R. Megowan, Sec'y Ky. Association."

"RESPECT THE DEAD!!" read the headline announcing the public auction of "a beautiful assortment of monuments, box and solid tombs, tomb slabs, head and foot stones, of all sizes and of the finest quality." The public auction, conducted by R.S. Wilson, auctioneer, would be held on August 24 "at the Stone Yard of P. DOYLE, on the corner of Upper and Second Streets." Purchasers could have inscriptions added "in the neatest style." Terms of sale were listed. For all items costing $10 and under, cash would be expected. Financing, "with approved security," for up to six months was available. "N.B. Any of the above articles will be sold cheap at private sale before the day of sale."

J.R. Megowan advertised that he had set up scales across from his stables "for the purpose of weighing Hay and Coal." Those who weighed "in quantity" would be able to pay in hay or coal. Megowan's stables were located on Short Street "between the Court House and the Hotel of Thos. B. Megowan, near the Jail." "Horses always on hand FOR HIRE as well as HACKS and BUGGYS, at as low rates as any Establishment in the City."

John W. Moore, receiver, announced a public sale, on September 8, of the mortgaged property of William Sparks. The sale would take place at Sparks' farm "on the Russell's road, 11 miles from Lexington." Moore enumerated the number of heads of horses, mules, cattle, hogs, and sheep that would be available, in addition to hemp, wheat, corn, rye, oats, and hay. Credit might be extended. Moore would also be "hiring" out nine slaves "until Christmas next."

Messrs. Marsh & Beach advertised that they had just completed their "large and splendid warehouse, at their old stand, on Limestone street, one door below Messrs. Lockhart & Robinson's Livery Stables." The firm had on hand and was receiving each week "every description of carriage now in use, which they [would] sell at prices to suit the times."

The drugstore of Matthews & Norton, at the corner of Main and Mill streets, advertised “fresh drugs and medicines” such as Cooper’s Isinglass, Jamaica Ginger, Calomel, Jujube Paste, and Palm Soap. Also available were colognes, soaps, “and a variety of other Perfumery.”

J.W. Willis announced his intention to open “an English School” on May 2 on Spring Street “in the house recently occupied by Mr. James Beach, and opposite Mr. Bruen’s Iron Store.” Willis, who boasted “some five years experience teaching,” outlined a curriculum of reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, geography, and history. Rates per twelve-week quarter ranged from $5.00 to $6.00. Willis listed as references Rev. W.F. Broadus, Gen. J.M. McCalls, Dr. H.H. Shepherd (“a former patron”), John Skillman, and Dr. Lloyd Warfield.

Druggist Thomas H. Skillman, whose store was located at the corner of Main and Upper Streets, advertised a number of products, both medicinal and otherwise. For a cough, he suggested “Rev. Dr. Bartholomew’s Expectorant Syrup.” For children afflicted with worms, he offered Fahnestock’s Vermifuge. For those suffering from burns, dyspepsia, “piles,” scrofula, and myriad complaints, Skillman had other products in stock which he could “safely recommend to the suffering public.” In addition to drugs, other items on hand for sale included sperm oil, honey, linseed oil, paint, and varnish. In a separate advertisement, Skillman announced that he had placed his accounts in the hands of A.T. Hays for collection. Persons with outstanding debts to the druggist were asked to settle promptly “as necessity will not admit of delay.”

J.S. Wilson’s “drug and chemical store,” located on Cheapside, placed a number of ads for various medications. Persons suffering from “liver complaints” might try “Dr. Lin’s Temperance Life Bitters and Chinese Blood Pills.” Those troubled by “the sick head-ache, either nervous or bilious,” might consider Dr. Spohn’s medication. Hay’s Linament was available for anyone laid low with “the piles.” “Dr. Taylor’s Balsam of Liverwort” purportedly cured everything from consumption and asthma to pleurisy, “debility,” and “palpitation of the heart.” In addition, Wilson’s Store carried dyes for coloring the hair and balms for curing baldness. (“What is there that adds more to the personal appearance and comfort of mankind than a good head of hair?”)

D.M. and E.W. Craig advertised that they were now offering for sale a “splendid” assortment of spring and summer goods “selected from the Latest Arrivals in New York and Philadelphia” by a member of the firm. The Craigs emphasized that the goods were priced “to suit the times.” “The Ladies are particularly requested to give us a call before they purchase.”

James March, proprietor of Lexington Carpet and Furniture Ware-house, located “opposite the East end of the Northern Bank,” announced “the largest and most elegant stock of FURNITURE AND CARPETING ever offered in this market.” Among the items advertised were 10 sideboards with mahogany and marble tops, 20 dressing bureaus, 8 pair of mahogany dinner tables, 30 dozen Windsor chairs, “Looking Glasses,” 150 “Venitian Blinds, assorted sizes and colors,” and 8 reclining chairs, “so very much approved for invalids or lazy persons.” March declared: “My Stock being very heavy and my purse very light, I will sell at the smallest possible advance on cost, for cash or approved credit.” He ended his advertisement with the reminder: “I will give my special attention to FUNERAL CALLS, either in the City or County, and my charge shall correspond with the times.”

James F. Drake, who operated at No. 1 Hunt’s Row, announced the arrival of “a splendid assortment of dry goods,” which he proposed to sell for prices lower “than any other house in the city, for Cash.” He also had on hand “a good stock of groceries, hardware, and glass.”

Porter & Butler, a hardware store located “at the Old Stand, Corner of Main-Street and Cheapside,” had for sale “a very large and well assorted stock of TINWARE,” which they proposed to sell to their customers “on as accommodating terms as any in the western country.” “County Merchants,” Porter & Butler declared, would “find it to their advantage to call and examine their stock before they buy elsewhere.” In addition, “GUTTER AND HOUSE PIPE [could be] made and put up at the shortest notice.” All transactions would be on “terms to suit the times.” The store also carried “carpenters tools of every description,” “locks of every description,” scythes, and knives and forks.

W. K. Higgins & Co. advertised that it had “just received from New Orleans a large stock of GROCERIES,” including Rio Coffee, sugar, molasses, SPANISH CIGARS “of various brands,” almonds, “raisins,” pecans, prunes, “and a variety of articles too tedious to mention.” The firm also had for sale “200 BUSHELS of good clean HEMP SEED.”

H.L. Bodley, commissioner, published several legal notices in this issue.

First, by decree of the Fayette Circuit Court in the case of Alfred Warner vs. Elisha Allen’s devisees, Bodley would be selling a house and lot on Upper Street formerly occupied by the late Elisha Allen. Second, by decree of the Fayette Circuit Court in the case of Thomas Hughes vs. Samuel Peel and others, Bodley would sell on September 10 the house and lot on Water Street “formerly occupied by said Peel, and afterwards by H.W. Hampton, and adjoining the property now occupied by James Reilley.” Third, by order of the Fayette Circuit Court in the case of Samuel Shy vs. William J. Shy’s heirs and creditors, Bodley requested all of William Shy’s creditors to come forward by September 10 to have their claims adjudicated. Finally, by virtue of a decree of the Fayette Circuit Court in the case of McGregor & Co. and Boswell against J.G. McKinney and others, Bodley announced he would be selling “blooded stock” on September 20 in front of John Brennan’s Hotel.

This issue of the Intelligencer carried a number of legal announcements from the United States, Kentucky District, Court in Bankruptcy. The following cases were listed, each bearing the names of James R. Sloan, commissioner, and Combs & Shy, attorneys. The five persons “seeking the benefit of the Bankrupt Law” were Louis Richardson of Fayette County; William Sparks, “merchant of Fayette County,” whose creditor was John Sidener of Fayette County; Ephraim Hogue; John Liter of Fayette County; and Erasmus Benton of Fayette County. Another half-dozen cases were listed bearing the names of James R. Sloan, commissioner, and Richard Pindell, assignee. The six persons, all of Fayette County, declared bankrupt were Orlando Alden, Sanford B. Vanpelt, John F. Thompson, David Laudeman, John Barton, and Samuel Beach.

Beall

Seeking help in sorting our Bealls in Kentucky in the late 1700s and early 1800s. Many are related from Scotland-to-Maryland migrations in the 1600s and later movements south and west. At least one branch settled in Washington, Marion, and Nelson counties in Kentucky. Some changed the spelling of the name to Bell and other variations. Several efforts have been made to connect these. Any help?

Price in Osage County, Mo., in 1850. His land was patented on 10 October 1853 and January 1854. Howard married Mary Elizabeth Phillips on 7 May 1858. The couple had three children, Samuel (b. 21 April 1859), John Moses (b. 21 July 1860), and Annie Elizabeth (b. 10 March 1862) Howard enlisted in the military during the Civil War as a sergeant on 18 October 1861 and was mustered in on 10 January 1862 in Castle Rock, Mo. He died on 2 August 1862 in St. Louis and is buried in the Jefferson Barracks cemetery there. Mary Elizabeth received a pension on all three children. Who were Nathan Howard's parents? Did he have any siblings?

Smith, Waller, Preston

I am trying to verify the parents of Mildred Smith (b. 1747, Va., d. 1803, Ky.), who married Rev. William Edmund Waller in 1769 in Virginia. The couple came to Bryan Station, Fayette County, in 1785 and moved to Buck Creek, Shelby County, in 1798. According to some sources, the church established at Buck Creek in 1799 was on land owned by Mildred's father. Was he Francis Smith and, if so, which Francis Smith? I have a source that says the correct Francis had a connection with the Preston family. Any help would be appreciated.

BOOK NOTES

Books on Kentucky genealogy and history contributed to the KHS library by authors, publishers, and compilers

Green County, Kentucky, Abstracts of Circuit Court Cases, Volume 14. Compiled by Barbara Wright. (2004. Pp. 196. Indexed. Softcover, $24.95, plus $1.80 shipping. Kentucky residents should add $1.50 in state sales tax. Order from the compiler at 150 Busy Baker Road, Campbellsville, KY 42718.)

Much genealogical information can be derived from the cases of Circuit Courts. Continuing her series, Barbara Wright includes the names of those appearing in Green County cases. In addition to helping confirm residency in Green County, the abstracts provide useful and often interesting information about those names. An example, from Case No. 8235, 2 October 1841: "Richard Pond complains of Thomas Jeffries in a plea of trespass. Pond is now and has always been a true, honest and faithful citizen from the time of his nativity to the present day. In 1841, Thomas Jeffries stated in front of witnesses that Pond "is a damned old rogue and I can prove it for he stole some of Barton's corn and I intend to have him apprehended and tried for it" meaning that Pond has stolen corn from Sam Barton. Pond sues for slander and $1,000 damages." Surnames include Allen, Barret, Cassady/Casady, Cowherd, Despain, Durrett, Eastland, Emerson, Forbis, Franklin, Goalder/Golder, Hawks, Hendrick, Innis, Irvine, Jarvis, Jeffries/Jeffreys/Jeffs, Keeton, Kesler/Kessler, Lobb/Lob, Logston, Milby, Mouser, Noe, Noggle, Otter, Overstreet, Patterson/Patteson, Phillips, Quisenberry, Read/Reed, Robertson, Shreve/Shrieve, Slinker, Spillman/Spilman, Thomas, Tressenriter, Underwood, Vance, Vernon, Wallace, White, Yates, and Young.

The Forts of Ohio. By Gary S. Williams. (2003. Pp. 166. Indexed. Softcover, $17.84. Order from Buckeye Book Press, 42100 T.R. 491, Caldwell, OH 43724.)

Much of Kentucky's early military history was related to battles with Indians based in what came to be the state of Ohio. In The Forts of Ohio, Gary Williams chronicles the events of Ohio's settlement, along with how the developing Kentucky affected and influenced them. The book takes the form of a chronological listing of forts built by the federal government and garrisoned with federal troops for the purpose of ensuring westward settlement and the protection of settlers. Such Kentuckians as Gen. George Rogers Clark, Gen. (later governor) Charles Scott, and Richard Mentor Johnson (later vice president) figure prominently in the book and the sites themselves are familiar in Kentucky history. Fort Greenville, is where Lewis and Clark met. Fort Loramie, built in 1795 by Gen. Anthony Wayne, was on the site of the previous Loramie's Store, which, before it was destroyed by Clark in 1782, was a jumping off point for Indians raids into Kentucky. Williams' work provides a valuable reference tool for those interested in Kentucky history and genealogy.

A Bibliography of American County Histories. By P. William Filby. (1985. Reprint 2005. Pp. 449. Softcover, $35, plus $3.50 postage and handling. Order from Genealogical Publishing Co. Inc., 1001 N. Calvert Street, Baltimore, MD 21202-3897, or via the Internet at: GenealogyBookShop.com.)

The late P. William Filby excelled in producing bibliographies, including the monumental American & British Genealogy & Heraldry (1983) and Passenger and Immigration Lists Bibliography, 1538-1900 (1981). This work, compiled for use by historians and genealogists, provides a state-by-state listing of all published county histories of any significance, giving information concerning title, author, and place and date of publication, as well as details of editions, reprints, and indexes, so the reader can learn what is available almost at a glance. Though based primarily on the holdings of the Library of Congress and the New York Public Library, it also makes use of published state bibliographies and lists of county histories furnished by librarians in each state. The section on Kentucky, though outdated, nevertheless provides a basis for much of what was available in 1985.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Correspondence

Betty Rolwing Darnell of Mt. Washington, who submitted possible identifications of Mystery Album photos that appeared in Volume 36, Number 1 (See also Volume 36, Number 2, p. 120), writes further about the images:

"I'm pretty sure that Cassie is the ... daughter of William M. Magruder, of Bullitt County, as reported earlier. But I now have doubts about the other photo addressed to B. F. Magruder of Goshen, Ky., in 1891. William M. Magruder's brother, Benjamin Franklin Magruder, born in 1832, is documented in Ballard Co. in 1884, and in McCracken Co. in 1887 and in 1900. Another Benjamin Franklin Magruder is in the 1900 Oldham Co. census. He was born in December 1849; earlier Oldham County censuses indicate that he may be a son of Benjamin Franklin, born circa 1806. I have not been able to determine whether or how they are related to the Bullitt Co. Magruders."

Correction

The Fey School and the Felix Pousardien Family article, which appeared in Vol. 39, No. 2, included two photo misidentifications. The page 85 photo identified as that of Frank and Louise Jackey Pousardien were actually the Pousardiens' son Felix and his wife Anna Marie Emmerich Pousardian. The page 86 photos identified as being taken at Fey School were actually taken at Mill Creek School.
